For EMTS and paramedics, end-of-life care brings to mind hospice or do-not-resuscitate directives – DNRs. But what about living wills?

What is a living will? Sometimes also called an advance directive, medical directive or personal directive, a living will is a legal document that explains how you want medical decisions about you to be made if you cannot make the decisions yourself. An advance directive lets your healthcare team and loved ones know what kind of healthcare you want, or who you want to make decisions for you when you can't. READ MORE HERE
