Hall Estill Welcomes Five New Attorneys

January 27, 2025

Hall Estill, Oklahoma's leading law firm, is proud to announce the addition of six new attorneys to its team, further strengthening its dedication to exceptional legal service and continued growth. With offices in Tulsa, Oklahoma City, Denver, and Northwest Arkansas, Hall Estill remains committed to its tradition of legal excellence and delivering client-focused solutions.

"Our firm is pleased to welcome our newest attorneys to the Tulsa and Oklahoma City offices. Each brings unique skills and enthusiasm to their respective practice areas," said Steve Ray, Managing Partner at Hall Estill. "With our expanding team we are positioning ourselves for the future and new opportunities in 2025."

New Attorneys

Shay Denning is Special Counsel in the Oklahoma City office, bringing over 20 years of experience in healthcare, regulatory compliance, banking, lending, bankruptcy, electric utility, and real estate law. Prior to joining the firm, she served as Chief Legal Officer for Axis Health System and, before that, as a partner at Maynes, Bradford, Shipps & Sheftel, LLP, both in Durango, Colorado.

Jennifer Isaacs is an associate in the firm's litigation practice in the Oklahoma City office. Isaacs served as an intern for both the Oklahoma Supreme Court for the Honorable Justice James R. Winchester and the Oklahoma Court of Criminal Appeals.

Alyssa LaCourse is an associate in the firm's corporate & business services practice in the Tulsa Office. She also has experience in non-profit and intellectual property law. While in law school, LaCourse served as a legal extern for the Office of the Attorney General.

Tyler Stephens is an associate in the firm's corporate & business services practice in the Tulsa office. In addition, Stephens has experience representing clients in civil litigation and bankruptcy matters. While in law school, Tyler served as an Associate Editor and Business Manager for the Tulsa Law Review.

Nick Tricinella is Special Counsel in the firm's Oklahoma City office, with extensive experience in corporate tax law, particularly in the energy sector. Tricinella advises on major transactions, including acquisitions, divestitures, tax partnerships, and bankruptcy matters. He also has provided counsel on tax planning, due diligence, and government relations, and influencing tax legislation at both the federal and state levels. Prior to joining the firm, Tricinella served as an Assistant General Counsel at Chesapeake.
