

Civil Rights

Hall Estill attorneys represent state and local governments (including law enforcement agencies), as well as regional and national companies in many types of civil rights claims arising under Federal and state law, including the Americans with Disabilities Act and the Civil Rights Act.

Our attorneys have extensive experience in defending against a range of claims from employment discrimination to law enforcement use of force cases. Our attorneys are available to assist clients in working to avoid civil rights claims through reviews of policies and procedures, training, and other proactive measures. When civil rights litigation does occur, our attorneys work with clients to investigate claims, recommend solutions, and represent clients in litigation and appeals.
