

Information Technology

Attorneys at Hall Estill work with clients in the areas of the internet, web technology information technology (IT) contracts and related representation. We have assisted in the complete documentation of IT and software projects, ranging from zero dollar beta-test site licenses to multi-million dollar customized technology implementation projects, including consulting services agreements, statements of work, licensing agreements, maintenance agreements, and related hardware purchase and implementation agreements. In addition, we also assist clients with:

- Software copyright issues
- Electronic commerce
- Internet domain name disputes under the federal anti-cybersquatting statute
- Website design and development agreements
