

Project Development

Whether an innovator, investor, production facility or government looking to develop a project in the alternative/renewable energy sector, Hall Estill attorneys can assist. Our attorneys have worked with clients in the wind, solar and hydropower arenas to take their project from start to finish.

Our attorneys understand the nuances that each form of renewable energy takes and are able to guide clients through every stage of their company's lifecycle and operation. In addition, for a client looking to develop where regulatory frameworks and market conditions are not yet well established, we can take clients step-by-step through making the project a reality.