Art F. Hoge, III, who has counseled Greek-letter organizations for more than 30 years, says that the allegations “assert reprehensible acts” by seven members of a fraternity chapter. It’s important to remember, he adds, that the allegations and facts “do not show a chapter event, an activity approved or ratified by the chapter or a violation by the chapter of any code of a conduct with respect to the alleged acts as they were taking place.”

“The challenges in this case will be continuing adverse publicity for Chi Phi Fraternity emanating from what appear to be acts of individuals who were members of the fraternity,” says Hoge, a shareholder in Hall Estill’s Oklahoma City office. READ MORE
