Now subject to US bankruptcy law's intricacies, tribes could conduct more creditor planning and may have more incentive to obtain secured property interests from debtors, said J. Kirk McGill, special counsel at Hall Estill.

"If I'm getting thrown in with all the other unsecured creditors and I'm going to get 5 cents on the dollar five years from now, that's a good reason for me to want to be a secured creditor," McGill said. READ MORE HERE
