July 14, 2025

Hall Estill, Oklahoma's leading law firm, is pleased to welcome Jason Fiscus as the firm's new Executive Director. This position is the highest-ranking non-attorney in the firm and is responsible for all operating, business and financial functions. Fiscus will oversee the business operations of the firm's headquarters in Tulsa, as well as its offices in Oklahoma City, Denver and Fayetteville, Arkansas.

This announcement comes upon the retirement of Hall Estill's longtime Executive Director, Rob Morris.

"Our firm welcomes Jason as our new Executive Director," said Steve Ray, Managing Partner at Hall Estill. "We are grateful for Rob's outstanding job leading our firm's operations for the past 15 years, and know Jason is the right person to continue our firm's standard of conducting sound operations while promoting our excellent work culture."

Fiscus previously served as Tulsa Country Club's General Manager and Chief Operating Officer for 20 years, where he increased the club's revenue by over 100% and oversaw a total of $26 million in capital improvements. He brings over 30 years of experience in organizational management, finance, strategic planning and operations to the firm.
